

Gao'an Stainless Steel Cable Tray Models

Article Overview

Gao'an stainless steel cable trays are part of industrial cable management systems, typically available in various sizes, materials, and configurations suitable for heavy-duty and corrosion-resistant applications.

Overview of Stainless Steel Cable Trays

Stainless steel cable trays are designed to support electrical cables, instrumentation, and tubing in industrial, commercial, and offshore environments. They are valued for corrosion resistance, durability, and strength, making them ideal for harsh or outdoor conditions. Common stainless steel grades include 304 (1.4301) and 316L (1.4404), with 316L offering superior resistance to chemicals and marine environments.

Types and Configurations

Cable trays are available in multiple configurations to suit different installation needs:

- Ladder-type trays: Feature side rails with rungs for heavy cable loads and easy cable access.
 - Ventilated trays: Have perforated bottoms or sides to allow airflow and heat dissipation.
 - Solid-bottom trays: Provide full support for sensitive cables or areas requiring protection from dust and debris.
 - Channel or trough trays: Compact designs for smaller cable runs or tight spaces.
- Tray dimensions vary widely, with widths typically ranging from 50mm to 900mm and depths from 12mm to 50mm, allowing customization based on cable volume and lo...
