

Hot melt glue machine for distribution boxes

Article Overview

Automatic hot melt glue machines improve efficiency, reduce waste, and ensure consistent bonding for carton and distribution box production.

Types of Hot Melt Glue Machines

- 1. Automatic Hot Melt Glue Spray Systems These machines are designed for high-volume carton box production and paper packaging. They apply glue evenly across surfaces, reducing waste and improving production speed. Spray systems are particularly effective for folding gluer applications and can operate continuously with minimal downtime, making them ideal for industrial packaging lines .
- 2. Box Erector Gluer Machines Box erector gluers combine hot melt adhesive application with ergonomic box assembly. They allow operators to fold minor flaps, apply adhesive, and compress major flaps for a strong, permanent bond. These systems can reduce adhesive consumption by up to 50% and are compatible with small to large corrugated boxes .
- 3. Bulk Hot Melt Applicators and Tanks For large-scale operations, bulk hot melt systems provide continuous adhesive supply through heated tanks and hoses. These systems can be integrated with automatic guns or spray nozzles, offering precise control over glue flow and pattern. They are suitable for long production runs and can handle various adhesive types, including standard hot melt and polyurethane reactive (PUR) adhesives
